

Designing a Career Framework for Registered Nurses and Nurse Practitioners in Aged Care (Phase Three)

Do you have two or more years of experience in aged care nursing—clinical care, education, research, management, leadership, or policy making?

Do you want to shape the future careers of registered nurses working in aged care?
Then this research is for you!

Join our e-Delphi survey and contribute your expertise to develop an evidence-based career framework for registered nurses working in aged care.

About the study?

- This Edith Cowan University-based doctoral research project aims to develop a nursing career framework for registered nurses working in aged care to improve recruitment, retention and gerontological nursing competency development.
- This study will be conducted by PhD candidate Sachini Thennakoon under the mentorship of Professor Karen Strickland, Professor Victoria Traynor and Dr Marcus Ang.
- The study has three phases, and we want your participation in phase three.

Creative thinkers made here.

What is involved?

- Take part in 2–3 rounds of a modified electronic Delphi survey.
- Share your expert opinion on the aged care nursing career framework using a Likert scale.
- Your participation will be voluntary.
