

GLOBAL UNDERSTANDING @ ECU

APPLY NOW FOR AN INTERNATIONAL EXPERIENCE IN SEMESTER 1, 2021!

Edith Cowan University invites you to join Global Understanding @ ECU, an international online learning experience available through SAH2100 Cross-Cultural Knowledge and Global Citizenship.

With the effects of COVID-19 still being felt across the world and travel currently not possible, this virtual classroom provides an opportunity to enhance your degree with an international study experience

Connecting with students from China University of Political Science and Universidad Piloto Colombia, in real-time you will explore the similarities and differences at individual and societal levels between cultural backgrounds. Interactive sessions will cover important topics like education, tradition and religion, delving into the impact these have on a culture and, in-turn, people. Working collaboratively with China University of Political Science and Universidad Piloto Colombia students, you will utilise knowledge gained in these sessions to produce a group project.

Upon successful completion of the unit you will have had the opportunity to demonstrate effective use of digital communication tools in the international context, culturally competent communication skills and the ability successfully collaborate on a global scale. In addition to receiving credit to your degree you will also be eligible for a Global Understanding Certificate.

Applications are now open and close Friday, 26 February 2021.

Be quick, places are limited!

To apply, please go to the Student Portal.
