

Communication for Everyday Living

Do you need help with your communication after a stroke, head injury or as a result of any other neurological condition?

Speech Pathology at ECU runs a student clinic for adults who have difficulty talking, understanding, reading, writing or using their voice.

WHAT DOES THE CLINIC OFFER?

- Assessment of your communication
- Help to improve your communication
- Support to improve your participation in activities involving communication
- Development of self-management strategies in communication activities
- Education and training for family or friends
- Interventions offered in an individual and/or group setting

HELPING STUDENTS' LEARNING

Third-year speech pathology students work under the supervision of a qualified speech pathologist. Participation in this program not only benefits you but also contributes to the future healthcare workforce.

PROGRAM STRUCTURE

How often you attend is dependent on your situation and needs.

The clinic runs for two blocks each year (March to May and August to October) for a period of 12 weeks. The clinic runs on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

REFERRAL

Anyone can make a referral – you can phone to make an appointment. A carer or other professional can also refer you for an appointment.
